Convening, Voting, Passing Resolutions

1. The General Meeting is held at least once per accounting period and no later than within four months after the end of the previous accounting period.
2. The party convening the General Meeting is required to ensure that an invitation to the General Meeting is posted on the Company's website at least 30 days before the General Meeting is held and, at the same time, to send the invitation, at least 30 days before the General Meeting is held, to those shareholders to the benefit of whom shares are registered in the book-entry securities register as of midnight on the 37th day preceding the date of the General Meeting, to their office or residence address listed in the book-entry securities register. The decisive day for one's entitlement to participate in the General Meeting is one day prior to seven (7) days before the General Meeting is to be convened.
3. At the General Meeting, shareholders may exercise their rights either in person, via their proxies or via an administrator registered in the investment instrument registry or via any other party authorized to exercise rights attached to shares in line with the registration in such registry. A proxy representing a shareholder on the basis of a power of attorney is obliged to present the written power of attorney stipulating the extent of his/her authorization before the General Meeting is opened. The signature of the represented shareholder on the power of attorney must be officially authenticated. A shareholder who is a legal entity is also obliged to present an up-to-date extract from the Company Register or authenticated output from a public administration's information system – the Company Register or other register specified by the law (this applies to parties which are not registered in the Company Register). Proxies whose right to represent a shareholder is based on any fact other than the power of attorney are required to document such fact. Shareholders may propose other candidates until the voting on the first nomination commences. First, the motion made by the convenor is put to a vote. If this motion does not pass, the other motions made by the shareholders are put to a vote according to the descending order of the number of votes of the particular shareholder. Should any of the candidates fail to obtain the required majority, the candidate obtaining the most votes is elected. Until the scrutinizers are elected, the votes are counted by persons authorized by the convenor to do so. If the minutes clerk, minutes verifier or the scrutinizer are not elected, the convenor will appoint them. The General Meeting may decide that one and the same person both chairs the General Meeting and verifies the minutes therefrom or, as the case may be, that the Chairman of the General Meeting counts the votes, unless doing so jeopardizes the due course of the General Meeting.
6. Voting at the General Meeting takes place via ballot cards; the details are determined by the General Meeting's rules of procedure as approved by the General Meeting.
7. When the General Meeting is held, motions made by the person(s) who convened the General Meeting are the first ones to be put to a vote, and if convened at someone's request, the General Meeting puts those motions first which were made by the requesting party. If the motion passes, other counter-motions related to the same matter are not put to a vote. If the motion does not pass, the motions made by other attending shareholders are put to a vote according to the descending order of the number of votes of these shareholders.
8. The General Meeting passes resolutions by a majority vote of the attending shareholders, unless the law requires a different majority.
9. If the General Meeting fails to constitute a quorum within one hour from the time scheduled for opening the General Meeting, the convenor will announce this fact to the General Meeting and the Board of Directors will convene, if still necessary, a substitute General Meeting.
10. Where the law or these Articles of Association require a notarial deed for a resolution to be taken by the General Meeting or require a certain fact to be officially authenticated or that another notarial act must be carried out, the Board of Directors will ensure that these acts are made and, if necessary, that a notary public is present and provided with all support. The Board of Directors is required to do so where a notarial deed is to be made for resolutions taken by the General Meeting even if the form of notarial deed is not required by the law or the Articles of Association.

If the employees elect their candidate(s) and the election is in line with the Articles of Association and the Election Rules, the Board of Directors is required to include the election of Supervisory Board members on the agenda of the next General Meeting and to nominate the elected candidates to serve as Supervisory Board members. The Board of Directors is not required to nominate an elected candidate if said candidate fails to comply with the requirements for serving as a Supervisory Board member, if the Articles of Association or the Election Rules were breached in the election or if electing said candidate as a Supervisory Board member would conflict with an important interest of the Company. Should the Board of Directors refuse to nominate a candidate for any of the reasons outlined above, it will nominate the candidate who is next in order depending on the number of votes. Supervisory Board member ceases to serve as a Supervisory Board member upon the expiry of one month from the delivery of the resignation notice to the Company, unless the Supervisory Board approves a different end of the Supervisory Board member's service upon the resigning member's request.
